Species: Honey Bee

Collector: Steve Bunker
F. Overbrook Village Green Area
Channahon, Ill. 61018
Elevation: 1000 feet 1987

Date: May 14, 1987. Specimens were prepared on the same date as the collection.

Locality: On the 1st floor of the 1st floor of the Overbrook Village Green Area, Channahon, Ill., U.S.A.

Substrate: Honey bees surrounded by grass and a few weeds.

Flighting conditions: Fair. When the bees were in the air they were flying up and down in a zig-zag pattern. The bees were very active and were flying in a very direct line. The bees were flying in a very direct line.

Other observations: The bees were flying in a very direct line. The bees were flying in a very direct line.
The bees were flying in a very
direct line.

On May 14, 1987, I collected a total of 100 honey bees from the Overbrook Village Green Area. The bees were collected from the grass and weeds in the area. The bees were flying in a very direct line. The bees
were flying in a very direct line.
The bees were flying in a very
direct line.

Observations on individual bees: Many of the bees were flying in a very direct line. The bees were flying in a very direct line.
The bees were flying in a very
direct line.

the facial characteristics of the two were strikingly similar and they were of the same formation as the two species.

Experience with the two species has led to the discovery that they are very similar. I have seen other faces like only a few times, the rest of which are in the in the same.

Date: May 14, 1990

Location: Route 39, about 3 miles N. of Rt. 39 traffic light near Hershey Park, Dauphin County

Habitat: Farm pond in open with grassy edges

Conditions: Fair to good viewing conditions with backlighting, viewed with a spotting scope by myself and Dave Schwenk and independently by Steve Santner and Richard and Patricia Williams (who found the bird)

Details: About 6:30 PM on May 14, 1990, Richard Williams called to report a Glossy Ibis. Dave Schwenk and I easily spotted the bird about 7:00 PM, and observed it through a scope. It was a large dark ibis with a long decurved bill and with striking iridescent green and rusty-purplish plumage. There was no noticeable white in the face along the sides of the bill which would distinguish the glossy from the White-faced species.

It was in the company of a Great Blue Heron and several Spotted Sandpiper, feeding along the pond's edge. I have observed Glossy Ibis over at least 15 years. My experience with White-faced Ibis is limited to 2 occasions, the last being May, 1985 in Arizona. The bird was seen again on the following morning by Dave Schwenk, passing on his way to work, but apparently not after that time.
