Description	Small, stubby-billed goose. Black chest and neck sock. White face. Black eye and bill connected by a black loreal stripe. Black tail. Pale whitish gray flanks. Upperparts neatly marked with gray ground color; each upperwing covert had a broad black subterminal band and a thin, whitish tip. The tertials were largely silvery-gray with darker tips.
Behavior (be as detailed as possible about what the bird was doing)	Swimming with a large flock of Canada Geese

Separation from similar species (How you eliminated others)

There are no similar species.

Discussion - anything else relevant to the observation that will aid the committee in evaluating it:

I didn't see the legs to check for bands, but this bird showed up on the same day as the appearance of 2 Barnacle Geese in NJ. Both Barnacle and Pink-footed Geese have increased, and it is clear that most Barnacle Geese in eastern North America during the winter months are of wild origins.

Are you positive of your identification ? (Why or why not)

Yes. This is a highly distinctive, easy-to-identify bird.
